

RISKY CHOICES – RISKY BEHAVIOURS — Providence Health Care Annual Health Ethics Conference

Risky Choices – Risky Behaviours

Some of the risky situations that can cause moral distress for health care providers:

- Eating at-risks
- Leaving the hospital against medical advice
- Consuming addictive substances and
- Refusing long-term care placement

In this interactive conference we will discuss:

- Should health care providers “respect” patients’ and residents’ decisions to engage in risky behaviours?
- In the age of patient autonomy, should professionals advance patients’ clinical interests against their wishes?
- What are the individual and social contributors to such “risky” behaviours?
- What are various barriers in promoting patient safety?
